

MANAGEMENT OF HYPERTENSION IN PRIMARY HEALTH CARE

Once a patient has been diagnosed with a chronic condition like hypertension, it is essential that health workers take the time to educate the patient in their diagnosis, the importance of adhering to medication, potential complications and ways that the patient can manage their condition. The patient can then be initiated on an appropriate treatment and how to detect and manage complications.